MONDAY / SPRING

Moonlit garden

My dear friend,

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

TUESDAY / SUMMER

THE SUMMER CABINET

My dear friend,

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

Notes from the archive

My dear friend,

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

THURSDAY / SPRING

THE HERBARIUM

My dear friend,

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

FRIDAY / WINTER

A WINTER EVENING

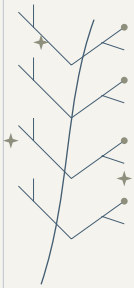

My dear friend,

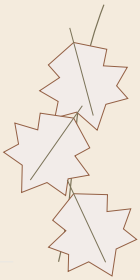

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

SATURDAY / AUTUMN

The traveller's journal

My dear friend,

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

SUNDAY / SUMMER

Letters in sunlight

My dear friend,

There is always a little room in the day for a letter. This page keeps the ornament at the edges and leaves the words in the light.

The season chooses the colours and botanical motif. The weekday supplies its own small emblem. These choices can be combined freely.

With affection,

A.

